61st Annual CBA Meeting and Conference June 10-14, 2025.

In case you and/or your students would like to take a trip to St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada for an intimate but fun conference, we are hosting the Canadian Botanical Association Conference.

The Canadian Botanical Association's (CBA) annual conference gathers 100-120 motivated members (professors, students, researchers and professionals, naturalists) to share their latest research findings. This year's edition will be held under the theme "Botany on the rock for conservation and sustainability" and will encompass a wide range of botanical research fields, including physiology, taxonomy, phylogeny, genomics, mycology, plant development and ecology. To underline inter- and intra-specific interactions at the 2025 edition, inspiring presentations from the world's leading experts in plant and associated organisms will be offered. Several student awards will be given. Deadline for abstract submission and early bird registration is April 1st.
